The Gurnard Crossword site frowns on bad puns. I know this because Cod told me

I'm running out of fish and I'm starting to flounder

MonkeyJammas Subernoj

They may carp and even be a bit crabby, Subs - but the CAFF is our plaice, not theirs.

... our enjoyment of punning may cause the setting hierarchy a little tench-ion, but I say pollock to that.

31 July 2015 9:13am

Ok, I'll come clean - I was being a bit koi

starrock Subernoj

We'll just have to skate over that then.

Chef gets crabby if there are too many diners locked into Pun Mode. It means that something has been slipped into the tea, usually .....

starrock starrock

31 July 2015 9:22am

Unless we're herring on the side of caution...

starrock sparclear

31 July 2015 9:24am

Something in the tea?
Not a Micky Fin shirley?

sparclear starrock

31 July 2015 9:26am

No, some Splothka, to warm the cockles of people's 'earts.

sparclear sparclear

31 July 2015 9:28am

Of course it doesn't have that effect on everyone. Some of us - *sob* - the finest splotherers that ever there was - *howl* - clam up completely under its influence.
*dabs eyes*

Fideliosmith MonkeyJammass

Is it too late to mussel in with some fishy clams to pun?

Subernoj Fideliosmith

Subernoj Subernoj

starrock Subernoj

31 July 2015 9:46am

MonkeyJammass MonkeyJammass

31 July 2015 10:14am

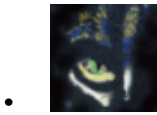

I may have cast my net a bit too wide and the tiddlers are slipping through the mesh. Still - plenty more fish in the sea.

Auntycraft MonkeyJammass

31 July 2015 11:14am

You punsters have scaled new heights (or should that be depths?)
Turtley fantastic...I've finished now...

MonkeyJammass MonkeyJammass

31 July 2015 11:22am

This thread is shoal of cobblers, according to "The Prawniad",

Chowder you (cullen) skink we're doing with all these pescatarian puns?
If today's setta is female (a mermaid, perhaps?), let's hope she enjoys what seaweeds, eh?

MonkeyJammass cheshirecheese07

31 July 2015 12:00pm

Wait 'til I tiller about the loan-shark that wanted the mullet back - "Here y'are", I said, "There's that sick squid I owe you".

That boat-oriented pun was a bit of a red herring, MJ ... I fear it will open up a whole new can of fishing bait (aka 'worms')!

cheshirecheese07 LondonBBG

31 July 2015 1:04pm

According to BBC News, Mr Finn 'took a five wicket 'haul' as England moved to the brink of victory over Australia.' So here's a little appropriately-named sea shanty courtesy of Fisherman's Friends :o)

cheshirecheese07 cheshirecheese07

31 July 2015 1:06pm

... apologies for the grammarse. Should have said 'an appropriately-named little sea shanty' of course. Oh, and its title is 'Haul Away Joe'.

cheshirecheese07 cheshirecheese07

31 July 2015 1:21pm

And here's a bigger catch :o)

MonkeyJammass cheshirecheese07

31 July 2015 1:55pm

And here's the same HAUL I dredged up 20 years ago when I recorded on my 8-track for/with them in the Chapel at Port Isaac:-)

cheshirecheese07 MonkeyJammass

31 July 2015 3:43pm

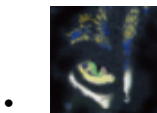

If you'll excuse my hignorance, please do tell ... what's you're connection with the Fishermen?
Love from a Die-Hard Fan :o)

searogue MonkeyJammass

31 July 2015 3:45pm

Stop it! Yer givin' me a head hake...

MonkeyJammass searogue

Yerse, it's right cuttle-o'-fish, innit!

cheshirecheese07 MonkeyJammass

Oi, I wasn't just fishin' for answers ... genuinely want to know :o)

MonkeyJammass cheshirecheese07

We were holidaying nearby and met John, the 'lead man' who ran the Post Office, and, having our instruments to hand, we jammed with them. Another time later we returned with all our band gear and used their rehearsal space (the chapel). I recorded them then.

cheshirecheese07 MonkeyJammass

31 July 2015 4:39pm

Amazing stuff. Do you have a website?

MonkeyJammass cheshirecheese07

No, my YouTube channel is my website, as such. That's where I keep all the music I create and/or get involved in. This forum persuaded me to do it - blame them;-)

iguana2go cheshirecheese07

and (my claim to fame) john used to go on football tour to europe with mr iguana - we had lunch with him once at his house in port isaac
