

THURSDAY JULY 19th, 2012 – ARSEON IN AULD REEKIE

Headquarters of the Easy Peasy Tax Revenue collection was threatened by fire believed to have been started by a consortium of tax evaders and bootleggers opposed to the imposition of the notorious EPT tax. The presence of free-marketeer and rabid capitalist Buvvy Phil in the vicinity at the time is believed to be entirely coincidental.

Arriving at the scene of the fire our fearless roving reporter was able to get unrivalled photographic evidence of the sinister and suspicious events as they unfolded in the Victorian grandeur of Auld Reekie.

1 - The Scene of the Inferno

2 - Scotland The Brave - Fire crews fight to contain the ferocious, flaming, firestorm

3 - In a desperate attempt to pay his EPT before the deadline, Buvvy hires an elevator from the Fire Service

4 As rumours circulate that there are large quantities of CAKE threatened by the fire, extra fire crews are called in to attempt a rescue.

5 - Too Late to Save The CAKE?

Will the fire crews get there on time to save the CAKE?
Don't miss next years exciting conclusion.